Deja o Internationalnom festivalu umetničkih zastava u Novom Sadu ima svoj nukleus u jednoj izložbi zastava kojom se grupa novosadskih umetnika predstavila na tradicionalnom Dunavskom festivalu u nemačkom gradu Ulmu, tokom proleća 2004. godine. Iako su takvu vrstu predstavljanja uslovile okolnosti na ulmskoj manifestaciji prostor Dunavskog keja za novosadske/vojvodanske/srpsko-crnogorske umetnike je bilo puno razloga da odaberu jedan stari medij kako bi iskazali svoj personalni umetnički identitet.

Poslednje decenije proteklog i prve godine aktuelnog stoljeća ispunjeni su uzbudljivim događanjima na nekadašnjim jugoslovenskim geografskim i kulturnim prostorima. Raspad SFR Jugoslavije donosi kardinalne promene na političkoj i geografskoj karti balkanskog regiona. Proces nastajanja novih država (Slovenija, Hrvatska, Bosna i Hercegovina, Makedonija, Srbija i Crna Gora), verovatno još nije okončan jer tinjaju problemi aktuelnih srpsko crnogorskih odnosa, Kosova (SCG), Republike Srpske (BiH)... Sve te nove, tek konstituisane države, nalaze se u sudbinskim tranzicijskim procesima, a njihove međusobne odnose opterećuju brojni problemi... U ovim prostorima pitanje »isticanja zastave« nije tek protokolarni problem...

Sva ta previranja nametnula su brojne stavove i borbu za koncepcionalno ustanovljavanje društva i umetnosti. Identitet se obnavlja po nekolikim, često i oprečnim kriterijumima, a najčešće su u opticaju namere restauracije istorijskih modela ili nastojanja da se ustanovi koncept modernog demokratskog društva. U umetnosti se nametnulo pitanje o identitetu savremene umetnosti koja je sudbinski vezana za sociološki, politički i kulturološki »duh mesta«. U umetničkoj teoriji, tokom devedesetih godina je, nikako bez razloga, ustanovljena žustra rasprava o odnosu lokalnog i globalnog, o odnosu regionalnog i univerzalnog. U tim tezama se zapravo raspravljalo o identitetu: o identitetu društva u kojem se dešava i realizuje umetnost, i o identitetu umetnosti koja (načinom post-modernističkih ili obnovljenih modernističkih koncepcija) problematizuje ideološke i sociološke podtekste društva...

Tako se došlo do ideje o organizovanju Internationalnog festivala umetničkih zastava u Novom Sadu. Lokalna uslovjenost razmatranja stanja identiteta je uputila na širi kontekst: problematika identiteta je univerzalna. Richard Meier (Richard Meyer) konstatiše da »termin identitet sugerira da individua prepoznaće sebe kroz stanje ili kvalitet koje deli sa drugima, bilo da je reč o rasi, religiji, seksualnosti ili kulturnom poreklu« te istovremeno konstatiše da se ovaj termin najčešće koristi da bi se označio problem - krize identiteta ili potrage za identitetom prouzrokovana otuđenjem pojedinca...

Bilo kako bilo, zastave koje su postavljene u pešačkoj zoni gradskog jezgra u Novom Sadu, jesu simboli umetničkog identiteta. Lapidarnim jezikom likovnih elemenata i vizuelnih simbola ukazuje se na karakter onoga koga zastava predstavlja i zastupa. Na ovim zastavama umetnici »ispisuju« i objavljaju i afirmišu vlastitu personalnu osvešćenost poetsku, umetničku, ali i istorijsku, sociološku, političku, ekološku... To što se zastave kao neuobičajeni, neformalni medij umetničkog izražavanja, uglavnom, »poklapaju« sa pikturnim ili drugačije koncipiranim ostvarenjima iz njihovih umetničkih radionica, samo potvrđuje činjenicu da ova i ovakva neformalna dela, ove nezvanične i sasvim lične zastave, jasno govore o identitetu umetnika, o identitetu njihove umetnosti ali i o identitetu jednog vremena u kome su ovi umetnički barjadi tako ponosno i visoko podignuti...

The nucleus of the idea on International Festival of Art Flags originated at a flag exhibition with which a group of Novi Sad artists presented themselves at traditional Danube Festival in German town Ulm, during spring 2004. Although such a type of presentation was conditioned by circumstances at Ulm event the area of the Danube quay there were many reasons for Novi Sad/Vojvodinian/Serbian-Montenegrin artists to select an old medium to express their personal artistic identity.

The last decades of the past and the first years of current century were full of exciting events on former Yugoslav geographic and culture areas. The breakdown of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia resulted in basic changes on political and geographic map of Balkan region. The process of the establishment of new states (Slovenia, Croatia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Macedonia, Serbia and Montenegro), has probably not been finalised yet for the problems of current Serbian Montenegrin relations, Kosovo (Serbia and Montenegro), Republika Srpska (Bosnia and Herzegovina) are still smouldering... All these new, just constituted states are undergoing crucial transition processes, and their mutual relations are burdened by numerous problems... In these territories, the issue of "flag displaying" is not only protocol problem...

All these turbulences have imposed numerous attitudes and struggle for conceptual society and art establishment. Identity is restored on the basis of several, often contrary, criteria, and, most often, those are the intentions of the restoration of historical models or striving to establish a new concept of modern democratic society. The issue of the identity of modern art, the destiny of which is related to sociological, political, and cultural «spirit of place» has been raised in art. During the nineties, in art theory, certainly not without any reason, a fierce discussion was initiated on the relation of local and global, on the relation of regional and universal. These theses actually discussed the following: the identity of the society where art occurs and is realised, on the identity of the art which (through post-modern or restored modern concept) considers ideological and sociological society issues...

Thus, the idea on the organisation of International Festival on Art Flags in Novi Sad has originated. Local conditionality of identity considering has pointed out broader context: identity issue is universal. Richard Mayer stated that the term identity suggests that an individual recognises himself through the state or quality shared with others, regardless of whether it refers to race, religion, sexuality, or culture origin, and, at the same time, states that this term is most frequently used to indicate problem identity crisis or identity quest caused by individual's alienation...

Anyway, the flags displayed in the pedestrian zone of Novi Sad town centre are the symbol of artistic identity. The lapidary language of fine arts elements and visual symbols indicated the character of the one represented and presented by flag. Artists «write about», publish, and affirm their own personal awareness on flags poetic, artistic, but also historical, sociological, political, ecological... Flags as unusual, informal medium of art expression - mostly «coincide» with pictorial or differently designed creations from art workshops, which only confirms the fact that this and such informal works, these unofficial and quite personal flags, clearly state artists' identity, the identity of their art, but also the identity of a time when these art ensigns are raised so proudly and highly...
